DECS DEC. 4TH.

English exchange teacher Mr Alan Davis is leaving behind a permanent reminder of his year-long stay at Bream Bay College.

A pole he carved and painted in Maori motifs was unveiled in a dedication ceremony at the college today along with two other poles worked by students in the school's Taha Maori group.

Mr Davis joined Taha Maori classes this term to find out more about New Zealand culture. He learnt flax weaving and tukutuku panelling as well as carving techniques.

Among the souvenirs Mr Davis will be taking home to Newcastle in January will be a flax kit presented by Taha Maori group members.

He and Form One teacher Mr Mike Dove spent the year at Bream Bay College under a League for the Exchange of Commonwealth Teachers programme.

Mr Davis swapped home and job with geography and social studies teacher Mr Clive Craymer who is coming back to Bream Bay College.
